Williams Starts Training, Finds Home at Havelock

Cherry Point—(AP).—Capt. Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox baseball star and Marine flyer of World War II, began his ground school studies Monday in a program that will lead to his return to flying status.

Recalled to active duty with the Marines in May, Williams has been assigned to an attack training squadron at Cherry Point for a refresher course in flying the Corsair fighter plane.

He is living at nearby Havelock with his wife and five-year-old daughter.
