In 1910 and other years thereabouts John W. ("Jack") Coombs was doing his share of work on the mound to make champions out of the Philadelphia Athletics. He holds a string of unbroken pitching records. He is still a maker of champions, as anybody at Duke university will tell you. Taking over baseball at Duke last year, Coach Coombs' nine won the southern conference title by remaining undefeated in the conference throughout the season. Above are the outstanding infield men of the title-holding outfit.

Duke has a hard schedule this season, meeting some of the best university nines in the south and east, including Princeton, Villa Nova, University of Pennsylvania, Georgia, West Virginia, Ursinus, Washington and Lee, Springfield, Fordham, Virginia, South Carolina, Maryland, and, of course, the college nines of North Carolina.
