

Mullet Bucket is On the Line

By BOB SEYMOUR

Tonight's battle for the Mullet Bucket shapes up as a real contest this year, with both teams working hard for the victory and the Mullet Bucket full of Dom's famous hamburgers.

Coaches Hugh Gordon and Norman Clark have been working on trick plays, passing, and almost anything in the rule book. Don't be surprised if you see sleeper plays, triple reverses, 50-yard passes, and maybe some plays you never heard of.

Both coaches swore me to secrecy, so I can't say who has what, but I will warn all you fans to keep alert or you never will see where the ball is. In last week's game against Jones Central, John Glancy completed a pass to end Lynwood Swinson who in turn lateraled the ball to Gerald Jones, a halfback. The play carried for 25 yards and set up the first score of the game.

Passing Team

Beaufort has a fine passer in Larry Kirk, and Dickie Moore is a good receiver. Kirk has connected for some beauties this year and he is backed up by another good passer, Butch Hassell.

The loss of first-string guard, David Perry, and Douglas Piner, the Seadogs' leading ground gainer, has hurt Beaufort's chances considerably. Perry has water on the knee, and Piner cracked a rib in the Vanceboro game.

Alex Copeland has been shifted to fullback to fill the hole left by Piner, and he is working well in his new position. Only a junior, he is a veteran of three years first string action with the Seadogs. Until recently, he was playing at tackle, but Coach Gordon shifted him to the backfield in an effort to put a little more weight into the running attack.

Sportsmanship Pledge

If both teams live up to their promises, this game should be the hardest fought but cleanest game in the history of the series. A gentlemen's agreement between
