LIBERATOR FIRST BOMBER ON SICILY

Radford Man On Ship Forced Down On Island

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 1 (AP).—An American Liberator was the first Allied bomber to land in Sicily, but the landing was not a part of the official schedule.

The four-engined plane was returning from a bombing of Naples July 17 when Axis fighters jumped it and shot out the port engine, riddled the hydraulic system and made a sieve of the fuselage.

"The fighters were giving us all they had," said First Lieut. Robert L. Edwards of Hamilton, N. Y., the bombardier. "We began losing height and fell out of formation after a while, but the pilot kept her steady."

The pilot was First Lieut. R. Gentry of Baltimore, Md.

The crew agreed that they were going to have trouble making home base and looked around for a place to sit down. They saw an island and then a landing field, so Gentry brought the big bomber down safely despite his inability to use the hydraulic controls.

The surprised airmen found themselves on Cape Pachino, which already was under British control, instead of somewhere in enemy territory.

The other crewmen were First Lieut. Ben Moss of New York city, the co-pilot; Flight Officer Michael Chorzelski of Denver, Colo., navigator; Sergt. Joe Parylak of Providence, R. I., radioman; and Sergt. Edward Goodman, 107 Sycamore avenue, Providence, R. I.; Sergt. Walter L. Summary of Radford, Va., and Sergt. John Romeo of Shinnston, W. Va., gunners.

Senators Want Dean

The choice is up to the player. He has been one of the most consistent men on the team this year.

The game Saturday with Carolina brought Duke their second consecutive North Carolina baseball championship. The Blue Devils won 17 out of the 23 games on their schedule.

DTC Defeats Trailways, 4-3

Holland was touched for 10 hits and fanned 11 men over the route. Pinyon gave up 11 hits and fanned seven. It was the first pitching duel between the Cleveland hurlers in two years. Herbert caught for DTC and Ellington received for the Trailways.

Lee Hawkins, first sacker for the Durham Baseball League champs, socked a 417-foot triple to lead his club at bat.
